Biography I am a senior lecturer in the Primary Education Department at the University of Worcester where I am the Primary SENDI Lead and Cohort Lead for the PGCE SENDI pathway. I teach on all Primary Initial Teacher Education routes and am also a school experience tutor and personal academic tutor. Prior to this I gained almost 30 years' experience in the education sector in a wide range of roles including headteacher, education sector in a wide range of roles including headteacher, educational consultant and Section 5 & 48 inspector. My work has mostly been in primary schools although I have taught all stages from Early Years to KS4 in a variety of educational contexts including Alternative Provision. I am passionate about inclusion and the transformative potential of education and am excited and privileged to be governor at Alderman Knight School.
